Tools for Gender Analysis: Understanding Vulnerability and Empowerment

This talk provides a high-level overview of the various tools and perspectives for undertaking gender-focused or feminist analysis in resource sectors such as small-scale fisheries. Drawing from gender studies, feminist political ecology, feminist political economy, and political science, this talk will dispel the idea that gender analysis means only focusing on women. It will show how understanding the many dimensions of gender roles and relations can improve the analysis of resource management and economic activity, expand our understanding of vulnerability and empowerment, and advance policy-relevant outcomes.

Speaker:

Dr. Andrea M. Collins

Dr. Andrea M. Collins is an Associate Professor in the School of Environment, Resources and Sustainability (SERS) and the Balsillie School of International Affairs (BSIA) at the University of Waterloo. Dr. Collins obtained her Ph.D. in Political Studies from Queen's University, Canada and was a SSHRC Postdoctoral Fellow at the Institute of Political Economy at Carleton University. Her research examines the role of gender in the governance of food, land, and agriculture by considering the gendered socio-political dynamics that discipline resource use and governance.
